Dear Customer

With extensive global news coverage on the impact from the spread of novel coronavirus, it is understandable that customers of Resino have questions around the security of supply of Resino inks.

Our current inventory of raw materials is at reasonable level, where we can supply our customers for the coming months. We are deeply aware of the potential negative consequences if the situation related to the coronavirus do not improve. We are in ongoing dialogue with our suppliers in order to stabilize the situation.

We undertake to monitor the position closely and provide customers with timely updates should there be any impact to our operations and our ability to supply customer base globally.

Yours Sincerely,

Jacob Kjær Mortensen
Supply Chain Director
